

A HIDDEN M^c.

By Jack Brandt

The illustration below is recorded as 'MPC', with the vertical line of the P sharing with the M, but is it an McC with the small 'c' reversed? Looking at it more closely one notes that the loop holes of the 'P' are quite a distance from the vertical line so now I think, it is an 'McC'. The stamp is a 1d lilac, with an illegible cancel. This is not listed in either GB catalogue in either form. However both do list McC types, and no MPC's. So, which is it, who used it, and why was the 'c' reversed? If it was.
